

I'm not a robot

New york times daily crossword answers

The New York Times crossword puzzle has been a daily staple from Monday to Sunday, but its journey into this prestigious newspaper wasn't an easy one. It took till 1942 for the crossword to find its permanent home, despite other newspapers publishing them since the early 1920s. Initially, the NYT considered it a low-brow game and only featured it on Sundays. However, after Pearl Harbor, publishers saw crosswords as a way to offer relief from war worries and it quickly became a hit. The puzzle's success led to its inclusion in daily editions just eight years later. With only four editors since its introduction, including Margaret Farrar, the NYT crossword is now the most widely circulated in the US. You can find printed puzzles collected in books or solve them online with a separate subscription. The difficulty level increases from Monday to Sunday, with Saturday being the toughest and Sunday the biggest challenge until next Monday's "beginner's level". Solving one puzzle without help can take weeks or months, making it essential to flaunt your skills with top-notch names and games. for salt water taffy does not include "seawater", but does include both salt and water. 16 Ancient Greek marketplace : AGORA In early Greece, an agora was a place of assembly. The assemblies held there were often quite formal, perhaps for the reading of a proclamation. Later in Greek history, things became less formal as the agora evolved into a marketplace. Our contemporary word "agoraphobia" comes from these agorae, in the sense that an agoraphobe has a fear of open spaces, a fear of "public meeting places". 18 ___ Walcott, 1992 Literature Nobelist from St. Lucia : DEREK Derek Walcott is a poet, playwright and writer from Saint Lucia in the Caribbean. Remarkably, the tiny island nation of Santa Lucia has produced two Nobel Laureates: Walcott and economist Arthur Lewis. 20 Stave (off) : FEND The word "stave" was originally the plural of "staff", a word describing a wooden rod. To "stave off" originated with the concept of holding off with a staff. In the world of barrel-making, a stave is a narrow strip of wood that forms part of a barrel's side. 23 Who said "Where id is, there shall ego be" : FREUD Sigmund Freud created a structural model of the human psyche, breaking it into three parts: the id, the ego, and the superego. The id is that part of the psyche containing the basic instinctual drives. The ego seeks to please the id by causing realistic behavior that benefits the individual. The superego almost has a parental role, contradicting the id by introducing critical thinking and morals to behavioral choices. 25 Chase, as some flies : SHAG To shag (I am reliably informed, never having played a game of baseball in my life!) is to chase and catch a fly ball. 31 Pool owner's problem : ALGAE Algae are similar to terrestrial plants in that they use photosynthesis to create sugars from light and carbon dioxide, but they differ in that they have simpler anatomies, and for example lack roots. 34 Noted stratovolcano that last erupted in 1707-08 : FUJI Mount Fuji is Japan's highest and most famous mountain. Located just west of Tokyo, Mount Fuji is an active volcano, although its last eruption took place in 1707/1708. 35 ___ Unseld, 1969 N.B.A. M.V.P. : WES Wes Unseld was a former professional basketball player who spent his entire career playing with the Baltimore/Capital/Washington Bullets. 40 Nonprofit grp. founded during W.W. II : USO The United Service Organization (USO) was founded in 1941 at the request of President Franklin D. Roosevelt "to handle the on-leave recreation of the men in the armed forces". A USO tour is undertaken by a troupe of entertainers, many of whom are big-name celebrities. A USO tour usually includes troop locations in combat zones. 41 "Absolutamente!": SI! SI! In Spanish, when one is positive, one might say, "Absolutamente" (Absolutely), "Si si" (Yes yes). 42 "Roots" surname : KINTE Not only did Alex Haley author the magnificent novel "Roots", he was also the collaborator with Malcolm X on "The Autobiography of Malcolm X". His 1976 novel "Roots" is based on Haley's own family history, and he claimed to be a direct descendant of the real life Kunta Kinte, the slave who was kidnapped in the Gambia in 1767. You may remember that LeVar Burton played Kunta Kinte and later became famous for his role as Geordi La Forge on "Star Trek: The Next Generation". Lego produces decorative sets to build models of famous structures like the Statue of Liberty, Sydney Opera House, Eiffel Tower, Tower Bridge, and Taj Mahal. A talon is a bird of prey's claw, derived from the Latin word "talus" meaning ankle. Rubik's Cube, originally called the Magic Cube, is a superfast puzzle solver with over 350 million sold in 30 years. Someone who is antsy is nervous and fidgety, like having ants in their pants. Photographers often say "cheese" to make people smile, but in other countries, they use words like "cabbage", "eggplant", or "whiskey". The Pecos River flows through Santa Fe National Forest and into the Rio Grande. Being flabbergasted means being utterly astonished. Steffi Graf is a former professional tennis player who won 22 Grand Slam singles titles. Irene Adler outwitted Sherlock Holmes in "A Scandal in Bohemia" and is often featured as a romantic interest in derivative works. A pendulum is a weight that swings freely, used by hypnotists. Yak milk is used to make chhurpi, a type of Nepalese cheese, and is also made into butter and tea. 24 vu is French for "already seen", but what if you've experienced something before without knowing it? Déjà vu can be a weird feeling that's hard to explain. Tessa Thompson, known for her roles in Selma and Veronica Mars, isn't just an actress from Los Angeles - she's also a superheroine Valkyrie in Marvel Comics movies. The 2014 film Selma is about the historic Selma-to-Montgomery marches of 1965, directed by Ava DuVernay. Snoopy's owner Charles M. Schulz was a cartoonist with a comic strip Peanuts that ran daily in over 70 countries and made him an estimated 30-40 million dollars annually. His characters Charlie Brown and Snoopy are still loved today. Googlebot is the search software used by Google to search the web, but did you know it also crawls this blog many times a day? Astatine is a radioactive element whose name comes from the Greek word for "unstable". It's one of the elements in the periodic table that makes up the halogens group. In Battleship, getting a hit means you've successfully guessed the location of your opponent's ship. It's a classic guessing game that can be played with pencil and paper or electronically. The Olsen twins, Mary-Kate and Ashley, are known for their roles in Full House, but they're actually fraternal twins who look very much alike. They were cast as Michelle Tanner on the eighties sitcom. Molars are grinding teeth that help you chew your food, like a millstone grinding grain into flour. Joe Biden, the future US president, was born in Scranton in 1942 and lived there for the first ten years of his life before moving to Delaware and then Mayfield. The Getty Museum in Los Angeles is one of the most-visited museums in the country, with two locations: the Getty Center and the Getty Villa. It's a cultural attraction that's been at the center of disputes over ownership of artifacts. A trey is a three in poker, but it can also mean something is unlikely to happen - like hitting a home run in baseball. Deck of cards, domino with three pips, or a three-point play in basketball - all can be referred to as "trey". Bookkeeper is equivalent to CPA (Certified Public Accountant). To be on the lam means to be in flight, having escaped from prison. The term originated in the 19th century. A shooting for the stars might refer to a spaceship. Carnival treats include taffy. Megastore represents one-stop shopping. Agora is an ancient Greek marketplace. I Can't Even expresses when words fail. Derek Walcott received the Literature Nobel Prize in 1992 from St. Lucia. Loss is represented by "1" of 3-1-4. To stave off means to fend. Site is a place, while ESP represents second sight. Freud said, "Where id is, there shall ego be". Some flies are chased with shag. You bet! translates to IT IS! LET ME GO! is a cry from captivity. Algae is the problem of a pool owner. Fuji refers to a stratovolcano that last erupted in 1707-08. Wes Unseld was the N.B.A. M.V.P. in 1969. Doomsday Machine is a mad scientist's creation. The USO (United Service Organizations) was founded during W.W. II as a nonprofit group. SI! SI! means "Absolutamente!". Kinte is the surname of "Roots". LEGO ART represents decorative work with bricks. MUST is essential, while TALL describes some stories and ships. TALON might grab a bite to eat. BAG captures or abandons. TEST is the course finale, while TILT represents bias. RIFE means bursting with something. CUBER is a superfast puzzle solver of a sort. I NAILED IT! says "Bravo, me!". PRONE describes someone getting a massage usually. NERD ALERT is a sarcastic reply when quoting "Star Trek". ANTSY refers to someone given to fidgeting. EASY MONEY means a big gain with no pain. The XWord Info crossword puzzle is scheduled for availability in approximately 7 hours and 56 minutes. A valid account with XWord Info may be required to access certain content. Users can explore Jeff Chen's new word game, featuring daily challenges at three difficulty levels: Easy, Peasy, and Squeezy. Participants are encouraged to share their results and spread the word about the puzzle. The provided text includes links to various blogs and resources for crosswords, such as Wordplay, Crossword Fiend, Rex Parker, NYT Acrostics Blog, Fill Me In (podcast), Daily Crossword Links, xkcd, and NYT Solve & Print. According to the Creative Commons license, users are free to share, adapt, and redistribute material in any format for commercial purposes. However, proper attribution and credit must be given, along with a link to the original license. Any changes or modifications should be distributed under the same terms as the original content. The text also highlights the complexity of solving crossword clues and how sometimes help is needed. It suggests visiting the website to find solutions, which are organized by date for easy navigation. Users can access specific puzzle dates and locate unsolvable clues, providing a step-by-step guide on how to find and highlight the clue text using keyboard shortcuts. Lastly, it mentions The New York Times Crossword's inception and provides links to other puzzle resources. The New York Times Crossword initially appeared only in the Sunday magazine, but its popularity led to daily publications. The puzzles are now available every day on the NYTimes website and about 250 other magazines' websites. A mobile-optimized version is also available for Android and iOS platforms. The NYT Puzzles aim to increase difficulty each day, with Monday's crossword being the easiest and Sunday's being the most challenging. Sunday's puzzles can be as large as 21x21 or 25x25 squares, while other crosswords are typically 15x15 squares. The puzzles come in two levels on Sundays, easy and difficult. For those struggling with clues, recent and up-to-date answers are available, and users are encouraged to try remembering the solution before viewing the answer. All clues are regularly checked and updated. Various crossword solutions are listed, including BIAS, ESSENTIAL, ROOTS SURNAME, YOU BET, and PLACE, with answers available for each. The crosswords are designed to be challenging yet solvable, with increasing difficulty throughout the week. you try to remember the solution one more time before viewing the answer. all the clues are regularly checked and updated. we have the most recent and up-to-date answers for you if you get stuck. if you've seen this clue before, we encourage you to think about it again. try staving off the urge to look at the answer and think more carefully. Given article text here Did you have trouble solving some crossword clues? We've got answers! Check out our latest updates for FLEE, MARY KATE AND ASHLEY, VU, WCS, FLABBERGASTED, ON THE BUTTON and STRANDS. See if we can help you get back on track with your puzzle-solving! If you recall the clue already, don't stress - we have the most current information available. We suggest trying to jog your memory one last time before checking the answer. Our clues are thoroughly reviewed and updated frequently.